This law permits American manufacturers to pool their issues in foreign trade, and relieves them from the provisions of the Sherman law forbidding domestic combinations in restraint of trade. There are many evidences that the government intends to give greater encouragement in the future to the development of the country's foreign trade and the mercantile marine to carry it. Combinations of every character will be encouraged. It is particularly desirable at this time that competition in copper exports be eliminated and that the market for the metal product be stabilized. To this end all the leading copper companies have been invited to join the combination. This merger is designed to offset the influence of large metal Importing com. binations that have been formed in England, France and Italy. Before the war the Germans and English dominated the foreign trade in copper, but London prices furnished the world's standard.

It is believed that as the world's copper industry is largely controlled in the United States, New York will ecome the great copper market and that its supremacy will be maintained through the agency of the proposed combination.
